FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Gales Industries Announces Name Change to Air Industries Group

BAY SHORE, NY - June 27, 2007 -- Gales Industries Incorporated (OTCBB: GLDS) today announced that its name has been changed to Air Industries Group, Incorporated. The name "Air Industries" was selected because of the strong brand recognition enjoyed by the Company's first operating subsidiary, Air Industries Machining Corp., within the aerospace industry. The Company's Board of Directors believes that the new name better conveys the reputation for engineering and manufacturing excellence built by the Company over almost four decades of service to many of the world's preeminent aerospace companies. The name change was ratified by a shareholder vote and is effective immediately.

"Our name Air Industries Group, Inc. better characterizes the Company's successful expansion through acquisitions, consolidation and internal growth strategies," said Peter Rettaliata, Chief Executive Officer of Air Industries Group Incorporated. "The name change is accompanied by a recently launched branding campaign that has generated a new logo for the parent company as well as new logos and other initiatives for the Company's subsidiaries. Shortly, we will be introducing a new website for the parent company which can be accessed by customers, business partners, investors and other interested parties to learn about the broadening scope of Air Industries."

Air Industries Group employs over 200 people in its two operating subsidiaries, located in various sites on Long Island.
